Carrier's Booth at HVAC&R JAPAN 2026 Wins Silver Award at International Design Competition in Italy

TOKYO, June 18, 2026 – Carrier Japan Corporation is pleased to announce that its exhibition booth showcased at HVAC&R JAPAN 2026 has received a Silver Award at the internationally recognized A' Design Award & Competition, held in Italy. Carrier Japan Corporation is a part of Carrier Global Corporation (NYSE: CARR), global leader in intelligent climate and energy solutions.

The A' Design Award & Competition is one of the world's largest international design awards, recognizing designs from approximately 100 countries. Entries are evaluated by a distinguished jury comprising of scholars, journalists, designers and business leaders. The award-winning booth was created in collaboration with Hakuten Corporation, with whom Carrier Japan has collaborated on previous successful booth designs, including receiving a prestigious U.S. design award for its HVAC&R JAPAN 2024 booth.

"We are truly honored to receive this award. Under the concept 'Carrier Solutions – All Around Us,' this exhibition provided visitors with an engaging opportunity to experience our products and solutions in an enjoyable and intuitive way," said Mineo Maruyama, President, Carrier Japan. "Through initiatives like this, we will continue to elevate the profile of our technology, services and brand, deliver new value to our customers and society, while striving to fulfill Carrier's purpose – Enhancing the Lives We Live and the World We Share".

The award-winning exhibition was designed to clearly communicate the value of Carrier's HVAC solutions, which play an essential role in everyday life across a wide range of applications. The booth featured a "city" space theme in Carrier's corporate color, with buildings of various shapes and functions. Visitors walked through this city-like environment and experienced solutions tailored to different usage scenarios. Through this exhibition, Carrier Japan successfully visualized how its solutions support everyday comfort and essential needs while demonstrating its commitment to addressing individual customer challenges with optimal solutions.
